Speirs Locks Studios is Glasgow’s newest space to dance.

These four industry-standard dance studios are a central part of the Royal Scottish Academy of Music and Drama’s performing arts campus.

The spaces are used to support professional dancers in their modern ballet training at the Academy and also by Danceworks; a school, community and pre-vocational access to excellence dance programme.

The studios are available to hire from January 2011.

The RSAMD is particularly keen to work with dance artists, companies and choreographers in the professional creative dance sector.
